When our mental health is not rock solid and our most important human relationships are suffering, how can we get back on track at home so we can shine at work? How can you possibly soar at work when your relationship at home is crumbling and stealing what little remaining joy you have? The overall result is poor work performance due to poor decision making, impaired memory and bad time management. Matthew P. Hoffman teaches people how to work towards their own 'Relationship Nirvana' where commitments are strong, communication is clear and consistent and relationship derailing conflicts and misunderstandings can become a thing of the past.
